

Medical ethics are the foundation of the medical professional. It is not just a word but it includes a broad range of actions that makes a perfect medical professional who is more beneficial to the society and themselves too.

As a medical student who is going to be a future medical professional; we should have a good idea on medical ethics and should follow them to provide a better service to the society.

According to my point of view, some films are very helpful to understand about medical ethics and the way these ethics affect our lives. Among those films, Patch Adams is a wonderful movie that shows us being a good doctor is not just gaining knowledge from textbooks and character of a doctor is mainly built on medical ethics.

This movie is a story of a person who was trying to suicide and found the correct path of his life while he was in the mental hospital for treatments and later became a great doctor who has shining qualities that make his profession more successful.

Patch, the main character of this film, entered the medical college because he thought that it is the right way to help people who need help both physically and mentally. As a person without having a knowledge of medicine, he cannot help people properly, but being a doctor is the proper way to help one to increase his health and mentality.

In this story, it shows both types of doctors who neglect the medical ethics and treat people only for disease and doctors who follow medical ethics and treat a patient not only for his disease. The main idea I got through this film is that a doctor's role in the medical profession is not just prescribing medicine. He should understand a patient's mentality, should talk with them about their problem. Mainly, we should know, one simple action of a doctor can make a patient's day wonderful and fill them with happiness.

Patch helps patients to regain the happiness they lost after becoming ill, he treats poor people without getting charges and because of his humanity, he became famous among all other medical professionals, patients and all over the country.

As a doctor, we should earn happiness that we can get by curing patients and making them happy but not just money. In one day, all that we did will come to us and make our souls happy. After watching this movie, I understood that the medical profession is not just a job. It is a profession that we should work with medical ethics.
